EXPLANATION

Because of the mountainous amount of data collected for all the basketball years, it was a necessity to only profile each coach that is identified with his era. Therefore, at the beginning of each section of each coach appears a profile.

The vast majority of statistics was collected in the past six months. The data came from three basic sources: official team scorebooks, newspapers, and student yearbooks and newspapers. This includes both Dickinson's and the opponent's sources.

The scorebooks were the best and most accurate source of raw information. However, there were too few scorebooks in the athletic department files. Our scorebooks include 1937-42; 1955-57; 1958-64; 1967-86. In most cases, the athletic director at the various schools was the key to whether there were such sources available or not. Those directors who had a sense of history were especially helpful. The director who had a long tenure at a school also was better organized with that school's records.

The biggest statistic absent from the scorebooks before 1955 was field goal attempts and rebounds by individual players. The gathering of these statistics by most schools coincided with the consolidation of these facts by the NCAA in the 1960's. Some schools, Dickinson included, kept two sets of statistics. One in the scorebook and the other information that was sent to the NCAA. In the period from 1972 to 1983 Dickinson did not enter the field goal attempts and individual rebounds in the scorebooks but in fact did send them to the NCAA Statistical Bureau. Therefore, in reconstructing those years all the attempts listed were from the opponents sources or NCAA final season records.

The move from Alumni Gymnasium to the Kline Life/Sports Learning Center in 1980 created a void in the same eleven year period. What material that was available is shown in each year's summary.

Most other years the reconstruction followed the same lines of research. Microfilm at the State Library in Harrisburg, Hamilton Library in Carlisle, plus sources on Dickinson's opponents campus library and athletic files provided the rest of the raw data. Actual visits were made to all area institutions and a vigorous letter writing campaign was waged to the more distant opponents. With over 1275 games played, you can readily see the enormous amount of material that was necessary for a final report.

The largest headache was obtaining the services of the right source at each college. As stated before, the athletic director was the best source. In other instances the following source persons included the head basketball coaches, sports information offices, archivists, librarians, college public information offices, and sports editors of local newspapers in the college area.

Bob Kenworthy, Sports Information Director at Gettysburg College, was the best organized and most helpful in this project. His books were the most complete which probably indicates why he has been their director since 1957. At F&M, the head basketball coach, Glenn Robinson had the information needed in his shot charts of the Dickinson games. Most surprising sources of data were provided by archivists at Ursinus, St. Francis College of Loretto, Pennsylvania, St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia, and Shippensburg University. It is interesting to note that very few Division III colleges had a separate SID officer. Most of the schools usually used their Public Information Office staff to dispense sports data.

Before 1942 and the Second World War, the campus newspapers of all schools was an excellent source of information. It seems that the sports editors took a special pride in reporting all phases of the game. Many times, when there was a discrepancy in the final game statistics, three sources were gathered in order to cross-check a particular statistic. In all cases, the individual Dickinson player was given the benefit of the better statistical figure. Each account lists that difference.

An interesting game occurred against Gettysburg in 1921. This game account is detailed in the record for that year. Three accounts were used to make a final accounting of this game - "The Microcosm", "The Dickinsonian", and "The Gettysburgian".

In reporting individual games, there were always three possible sources. These three could include any of the following: local newspaper sports editor or reporter, home scorebook keeper, and the visiting scorebook keeper. Keep in mind that the home team scorebook is always the official record. Additional statisticians also helped each team. Immediately you can understand the problem with compiling the correct figures, although most always the three agreed. Usually the scorekeepers never compared notes at the end of the game. One big drawback for Dickinson was the fact that the "Sentinel", Carlisle newspaper, hardly ever reported away games.

It was the mission of this report to give every available statistic that appeared in print for every game in every season. The team and individual all-time records were prepared from each season's report. If any errors exist, they are errors of omission rather than commission. There are very few games that were not available from any source. Those games are marked in the summaries.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

There were countless people who have aided me on this research project on the history of basketball at Dickinson College. To all those persons, I want to express my gratitude.

I would especially like to acknowledge Dr. Benjamin D. James and Eugene A. Evans. Both men are Hall of Fame members and have long time associations with Red Devil basketball. Dr. James played basketball for four years from 1930 to 1934, coached as an assistant to McAndrews for two years from 1941 to 1943, and helped recruit student-athletes as director and later as Dean of Admissions from 1946 to 1963. Finally, as Dean of Students, he helped shape athletic policies. Gene Evans was a member of the 1945 to 1949 basketball teams and returned to coach as an assistant and, later, for the past seven years as the head basketball coach. Both read and made important comments on the manuscript.

The May Morris Room archivists, Martha Slotten and Marie Ferre, allowed me much freedom of access to all college publications. Marcia Barndt Gobrecht, my wife, proofread and offered suggestions for the final copy. Last but not least, the college administration, who were responsible for granting me a sabbatical to finish the collecting of statistics and to write the narrative.

The entire project was an enjoyable experience and I hope that in the future, I will have the opportunity to complete other sports histories.

EARLY BASKETBALL HISTORY AT DICKINSON TO 1918

EARLY BASKETBALL HISTORY AT DICKINSON TO 1918

In 1891, basketball originated in Springfield, Massachusetts at the YMCA Training School which is now Springfield College. In searching for a game to play during the long winter months, Dr. James Naismith, a physical education instructor, was given the assignment by his department chairman to invent a game that would keep the unruly students occupied. He tried all types of games indoors but most of them were too physical in nature. Finally, he asked a maintenance worker to fashion some boxes on the wall. The worker did not have any spare lumber available but he advised Dr. Naismith that there were plenty of peach baskets in the storage room. The worker attached one basket at each end of the gymnasium and the early game of basketball started to take form.

The object of the game was to toss a volleyball into the baskets. It was odd to note that, in the very first days of play, the bottoms were still intact on the baskets and someone had to lift out the ball that entered.

Despite enthusiasm for the new game at Springfield, basketball spread very slowly. Even six years later it was still thought to be a YMCA exercise rather than a serious game. It took a little time until the graduates of the Training School could spread the game to the local Y's. The youngsters who learned the game spread it to their high schools and colleges.

By January 1895, "The Dickinsonian" called the attention of the Mid-Winter Sports Committee to the game of "Basket Ball". They further stated that "it is a good game and has lots of excitement in it". "Let's have two teams to compete in the gymnasium in the Mid-Winter Sports". "The game is simple and easily learned". Again "The Dickinsonian" in the April 1895 issue refereed to basketball. They stated, "We are glad to notice that the suggestion of "The Dickinsonian" about basket ball has been acted upon". "Professor Stevens (Stephens) has purchased a ball and has the basket frames already in position". "Can we have a game for the Spring Sports?" It must be noted here that there was no electricity in the gymnasium at this time. Thus, most workouts must be done during daylight hours. This situation created a log jam for space with the gym team and classes.

Captain Pratt, the Indian School superintendent and founder, invited Professor Stephens and about twenty boys to visit the school at the barracks to witness a magnificient exhibition of basketball. Apparently the Indians had been playing the game for at least two years. The same issue of "The Dickinsonian", May 1895, also stated that President Reed thought basketball nothing but diluted football.

The following year, "The Dickinsonian" stated that the attempt at basketball made last season was not as successful as was hoped for as an out-door sport. "It does not seem to arouse enough enthusiasm". "While the gymnasium is too small and too full of apparatus to make a good place for such a lively game".

The exhibition game that the Dickinson men were invited to witness that Spring planted a seed about the game in several interested athletes, most notably the football players. The Spring of 1896 found those players forming a basketball club team. The challenge thrown to them by Captain Pratt resulted in a scrimmage game with the Indians.

"The Red Man", the official Indian School publication of April 1896 reports the game played on March 28. The following is a reprint of that historic meeting:

"THE GAME WITH DICKINSON COLLEGE"

"On the evening of Saturday the 28th of March, the gymnasium was thrown open to those who wished to see what promised to be the most interesting basket-ball game of the season. An admission fee of 25 cents was charged for the benefit of the Indian School Athletic Association.

By eight o'clock the galleries contained several hundred people including students of the school, students of Dickinson College and citizens of Carlisle.

The first of the players to put in an appearance were the Dickinsonians - Messrs Heckman (Capt.), Sheets, Hubler, West, Louther, Kriebel, Moses, Dyer, Houston - who came in bounding like young deer, and were dressed in considerable undress.

Sleeveless and legless suits were the rule.

Sleeveless white sweaters inside, dark sweaters outside, white and dark sweaters inside and outside and union suits of white, were white. The most becoming suits were the close-fitting dark blue.

The Indians - Jamison (Capt.), Shelafo, Rogers, Archiquette, Senaca, Waboos, Spencer, Miller, Mitchell - who, according to tradition, might be expected, to have worn the least clothing, were completely covered, although the exposed legs and arms of bronze are not so conspicuous and seemingly out of place as the bare extremities of the white-skinned Anglo-Saxons.

The Indians wore suits of dark red making of themselves the veritable red men of the occasion.

Five minutes, perhaps, were spent in practice, as the band in the gallery discoursed popular airs.

The Indian practice was slow, and one could see from the wild leaps made for the ball by the Dickinsonians and the graceful skips from one side of the field to the other, that they meant to astonish the 'natives', if such a thing were possible.

The game consisted of two 15-minute halves with an interval of ten minutes between the halves, and was won by the Indians in a score of 5 to 4 goals.

The playing throughout was full of dash and determination.

The visiting team were obliged to make long throws in order to get the ball away from their basket, while our boys by short passes and systematic work slowly but surely returned it.

The Dickinsonians made three of their four points on fouls, while we made but one. Of the other four goals to our credit, Archiquette and Rogers thre two each. None of the fouls were made intentionally.

Mr. Thompson of the Indian School acted as referee.

Messrs. Claudy, of the Indian School, and Stephens, of Dickinson College, were the umpires."

Apparently, the Dickinsonians did not take too kindly to the loss at the Indian School because nothing about this game was ever written in either "The Dickinsonian" or "The Microcosm". In fact, the only thing listed in a passing fashion was that there was a "scrum" with the Indians but no details were listed. "The Red Man" also never chronicled another game with Dickinson. The new game would take getting use to.

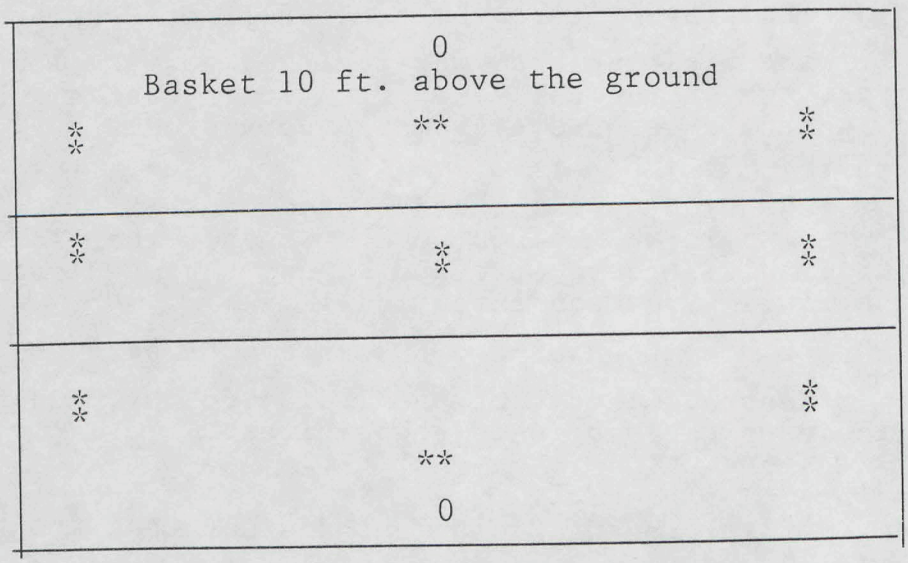

Maybe a look at the description of the game that appeared in the same issue of "The Red Man" that contained the account of the Indian - Dickinson game would allow you a better understanding of how the game was played in that era. The following is a reprint of that April 1896 article:

"Basket Ball"

"Basket Ball is a game to be played in-doors or out. It has none of the objectionable features of some other athletic games but possesses all of their virtues. It is as exciting and interesting as football.

The field of play can be of any size. The larger the field the greater the number of players. In a playing space of 6000 square feet or over, nine men would constitute a team.

As we play it, the field is divided into three equal parts by lines running across it. There are two baskets one at each end of the field and ten feet above the ground.

The stars represent the players, there being a player and his opponent at each place.

Three men are assigned to each part of the field and are to defend their portion of it. Each player has an opponent. While one team by throwing the ball, rolling or batting it with the open hand, is endeavoring to get it in the basket at one end of the field, the other team is by the same means endeavoring to prevent this and is trying to get the ball in the basket at the opposite end of the field.

The players are not permitted to carry the ball, nor are they allowed to run with it or kick it. Pushing, striking, tripping or unnecessarily rough play is called foul and is penalized by permitting one of the opposite team to stand fifteen feet from the basket and without interference to try to throw the ball into the basket. Each time the ball enters the basket counts one goal.

The team scoring the greater number of goals in a specified time of play, wins the game.

The referee puts the ball in play by throwing it in the air at the centre of the field when each team tries to make a goal as described. After each goal the ball is put in play at the centre.

For all around athletic training basketball is of inestimable value."

The November 1896 "Dickinsonian" reported that the University of Pennsylvania was attempting to form a basketball league and wanted Dickinson to participate. Swarthmore, F&M, Bucknell, and Bloomsburg Normal School were other schools contacted to join.

By February 6, 1897 an editorial appeared in "The Dickinsonian" which stated that basketball was very popular and a team from Dickinson will again play the Indians. The editorial further said, "We, therefore, should get some orderly training into workouts and a Captain should be elected to start a team". No roster appears for this year but it is likely that most of the same men played on the team as in 1896. It is also quite possible that they played the Indians again. However no record of the game exists in either school's publications. The college administration certainly did not recognize the club sport.

The first officially recognized team was the 1899 - 1900 team. Thus, this group of basketball pioneers were awarded the Varsity "D". Bucknell was the first intercollegiate opponent, although the first game was played against the Harrisburg YMCA. As has been noted earlier, the YMCA played a big part in the development of the game. On Dickinson's first schedule, three YMCA teams are listed. The early years also found basketball a totally student run organization from gathering the necessary funds, to travel arrangements, to equipment purchases, and to coaching.

There were many pitfalls in the early arrangements for a schedule. The opponents were haphazardly scheduled and subject to change at a minute's notice. The rules were not standardized and therefore subject to local interpretation. Anybody could be called upon to officiate the game. Team players, injured players, faculty members, and in the case of Dickinson from 1908-12, a young law instructor, Walter H. Hitchler, who was to have a tremendous impact on Dickinson athletics in later years.

Some YMCA's used their own rules which allowed no dribbles and awarded three points for each basket from the field. Some other Y's and most of the colleges followed the rules as set forth by the AAU (Amateur Athletic Union). Until the mid 1890's the YMCA's ruled the country in regards to all basketball rules. The original thirteen that Naismith set down served as the basis for all rules in all areas. All but one still exist in today's rules.

Around the turn of the century, the AAU began to codify all old and new additions to the rule book. In 1908 the NCAA joined the AAU and together they determined the rules.

Many schools ended their schedules abruptly. Others dropped programs for a few years and just as quickly restarted them again. Dickinson fell into both of the above categories. In 1902-03, the schedule was dropped after two games. The reason cited was illness and injuries to squad members. Other years finances at Dickinson were given as the reason for stopping play. In all cases, the sport was always re-instituted when there was overwhelming student interest. During the years when there was no varsity competition, inter-class basketball kept the interest in the sport alive.

It is noteworthy to mention that the women of Dickinson had a schedule and was considered a varsity program. In 1902-03, they played a two game schedule, home and away, with Cumberland Valley Normal School, later named Shippensburg. The co-eds split the series with each team winning on their home court.

The failure to win games was probably the biggest reason for the demise of most of the programs. Nobody was going to pay to see a loser. Usually financial problems were tied to the final won-lost record. No income during the season usually was tied to the over all record.

In 1908-09 intercollegiate play resumed for the third time since its inception in 1899-1900. "The Dickinsonian" stated that there appeared to be a renewed interest in basketball but three doubts were raised before the season started. Those doubts were, "1. Could basketball leave a hole in the Athletic Association Treasury? answer - $40.00 net loss; 2. Could they turn out a credible team? answer - yes, two wins and four losses; 3. Do the students want basketball? answer - yes and they enjoy it".

During the three year hiatus between 1906 and 1908, many club teams, pick-up teams and law school teams abounded. They all used the name of Dickinson but none of these so-called teams were ever officially recognized by the administration of the college. The general public really was confused by all these teams.

With the .500 record in 1909-10, the game of basketball was definitely enjoying a renewed success. Then the bottom fell out of the program when the 1911-12 team had a winless season. This once again prompted the athletic powers to end the program. This situation remained until the end of World War I.

During the formative years, only one so-called coach ever directed the fortunes of Dickinson basketball. Joseph A. Pipal, former football coach and physical director of the gymnasium assumed the leadership in the renewal of intercollegiate play in 1908. A failure as a football coach, Pipal recorded a two win and four loss season. This .333 was the same percentage that the entire early programs recorded from 1899 to 1918.

Coaching was definitely lacking in the early years. The willy nilly approach by the student run organization caused the lack of continuity and success. However, this was the universal approach at almost all other colleges in the country. The managers and captains had exclusive control during the season but the Athletic Association along with Dr. Reed, college president,had the final authority. As a student run organization, it was only as good as the leadership provided by each squad.

From 1899 to 1912, excluding Pipal's brief tenure in 1908-09, 22 wins and 44 losses were recorded for a .333 percentage. The various programs never quite reached the point where they were self-supporting. The eventual specter of no funds to operate the various teams, in the last analysis, caused the demise of the good intentions of the players and the management staff. The 10¢ admission fee did not allow for much margin of error. The officiating was erratic because there was not a systematic means for training qualified people. The whistle blower was anybody who was interested and available. The system caused much controversy because "homers" were always very much in evidence depending where you played. Walter H. Hitchler, as previously mentioned, was an exception to the rule.

Up to 1918, most of the teams at various times were made up of a combination of Conway Hall prep school students, law students, and college students. The rules of eligibility were not very stringent and there was no national governing body until 1908 when the NCAA began an involvement with the rules.

The best player of the era was Victor H. Boell. He was one of the players who helped get the sport started again in 1908. He proved to be one of the best scorers in the early years. Because of his basketball abilities and his all-around abilities in other sports, Boell was posthumously inducted into the Dickinson College Sports Hall of Fame on September 27, 1980. He won nine letters in his college career, including two in basketball.

He scored a record 324 points in his three year career. This mark stood until 1923. He amassed 82 field goals and 160 free throws. In this early era, one player was the designated free throw shooter. Therefore, Boell had more opportunity to score points. His records are listed in the 1910-11 summaries for the season.

It was not a very auspicious beginning, but interesting. Dickinson was definitely one of the first college institutions to have a varsity basketball team. The early experiences in the sport were probably not that unlike similar colleges in the country. The early pioneers should be viewed as men who wanted to play a new game for fun and enjoyment. Of course, they could not have known what lay ahead as the game progressed. Suffice it to say, they truly reflected the college spirit and scene throughout the country at this time.

Season Hi-Lites

Captain Floyd L. Hess fractured his wrist with 12 seconds to go in the season's last game with Gettysburg at Gettysburg.
According to "The Gettysburgian", campus weekly, the rules used in the Dickinson game at Gettysburg were different than those used in the Dickinson first game.(what ever that implies)
Our scorers claim that the second Gettysburg game ended in a 20 - 20 tie. Not correct declares "The Gettysburgian".
Christy Mathewson, Bucknell's gift to the Major Leagues in baseball was a starter for the Orange and Blue basketball team in the two game series.

Season Hi-Lites:

An intercollegiate schedule was arranged but because of injuries and illnesses the season was discontinued after the second game. Although there were enough players available, the Dickinsonian gave lack of material as the reason for the stoppage.

Finished the year with an inter-class tournament in order to gain experience and develop material.

The first women's Varsity basketball team made its appearance this year and played a two game home and home schedule with Shippensburg Normal. Dickinson won the first contest at home 6 - 4 and Shippensburg won the second 6 - 2 at Shippensburg.

Season Hi-Lites

Varsity basketball was re-introduced to the campus after three year hiatus.
Short 6 game schedule helped to renew interest. The entire country was showing renewed interest everywhere.
Three doubts for the season were 1. could the basketball season leave a hole in the AA Treasury? answer - $40.00 net loss; 2. could they turn out a creditable team? answer - 2 wins, 4 losses; 3. do the students want basketball? answer - yes and they enjoy it.
Scrimmaged the Harrisburg YMCA and beat them easily - 49 - 26.
No records were set this year.
There were many teams organized for the past three years but none were official Dickinson teams.

WALTER H. HITCHLER - 1918 - 1919

WALTER H. HITCHLER - 1918 - 1919

Continuing with inter-class basketball from 1912 until 1918, the college through the entreaties of Professor Hitchler of the Dickinson School of Law decided to venture into the intercollegiate world of basketball again. Although Hitchler fostered active play with the law students during the six year hiatus, the college administration never gave their official approval to any of those so-called teams that carried the college name. The war clouds in Europe may have been a factor in not re-starting the sport.

Immediately after the armistice, Hitchler gathered an almost equal group of law and college students. He aided this group in re-instituting basketball. It has survived to the present through 67 seasons. Only one interuption marred that long play. During World War II only in 1943-44 did Dickinson not field a team. This new venture was a welcome sight at Dickinson. The three wins and six losses did not dampen the enthusiasm of the squad.

Twice during the season, Dickinson entertained the wounded soldiers at the Army Field Hospital at the Carlisle Barracks. Because of the war, the Indian School ceased its great experiment at the historic barracks. In late January 1919, the Red and White defeated the Base Hospital team. Later in the February part of the schedule, Gettysburg provided the opposition at the barracks.

Almost two weeks before playing Gettysburg at the barracks for the soldiers, the Battlefielders helped Dickinson to open their intercollegiate schedule in the West Louther Street gym. In fact, the Gettysburgians were played three times during the season. However, the third game in Gettysburg, in the season finale, proved disastrous. The 65 - 23 defeat was the worst of the season. Even the sports reporting was not very good this year. "The Dickinsonian" and the "Microcosm" did not put forth any effort on behalf of the fledgling program. Most of the material for this season was obtained from rival college student newspaper files.

It appeared that Hitchler was more an advisor than a coach to this team. In any event, he spearheaded the revival of the basketball program. On September 28, 1985, Dean Hitchler was posthumously inducted into the Dickinson College Sports Hall of Fame. He was cited for his outstanding contributions to the entire sports program at Dickinson for almost fifty years. In addition to his coaching basketball, Hitchler was tennis coach for twenty years. He relinquished the tennis post only after he was chosen as Dean of the law school.

As he stepped down as coach in basketball, his influence was responsible for the appointment of his successor. Richard H. "Mac" McAndrews had been associated with Dickinson athletics since 1911 as trainer. Hitchler and McAndrews had roots in the Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania area. Becoming fast friends in Carlisle, these two bachelors struck up a life time friendship.

Hitchler was instrumental in forming the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference as Dickinson's representative. He also was a driving force behind the founding of the prestigious Board of Athletic Control at the college in 1934. This Board, with the Dean serving as chairman at various times, was responsible for all athletics at Dickinson until 1961. The BAC were the direct advisors to the President on all athletics including hiring and firing of coaches, establishing budgets, approving schedules, setting standards of conduct by athletes, and in general controlling all athletics.

Hitchler was the sports official who was most highly sought by schools to referee games in both football and basketball. For many years the Dean was the chief official at Mercersburg Academy in football. He officiated many games of basketball at the college during the 1908-12 varsity era. The University of Virginia graduate had immediate credibility as an official because of his law background.

Many questions abound concerning the use of law students on the college sports teams. Until 1932, law students were not required to have baccalaurate degrees to gain admission to the Dickinson School of Law. Therefore, many young men entered the law school with athletic eligibility remaining. The Dean was always looking for those athletes and looked with favor on their admittance to the school. In other cases, Hitchler actively recruited high school athletes and older boys with a penchant for the law.

One such outstanding athlete was Francis A. "Mother" Dunn who came from Wilkes-Barre. After a phenomenal career in football and basketball at the college, Dunn proceeded to the law school. He later obtained a position with the Cambria Steel Company in Johnstown, Pennsylvania. This Company later merged with Bethlehem Steel.

Two of Hitchler's best players in 1918-19 were Captain Forrest J. Mervine and Clarence L. Brock. These two were the top scorers and had Brock not been injured in the Bucknell game, the Red and White would have won the game easily instead of losing the game in overtime. Half of the letter winners were from the law school and the other half from the college. One of the law letter winners, Jacob M. Cohen, of Philadelphia, established a trophy for the most valuable basketball player in each season beginning in the late 1920s. Cohen dubbed the award "The Phi Epsilon Pi MVP Trophy".

Only two players would graduate from this squad. Captain Mervine and Lemisch, both law students, were the two so many fans believed that the program was on solid ground. This was not to happen but at least the program was back to stay.

In 1936, Hitchler presented a speech to the football squad at their annual banquet in December. The speech allows the reader to gain some insight into Hitchler's sports philosophy. In fact, the Ivy leagues follow the same ideas today. Also the NCAA Division III philosophy follows the same pattern. The following is an excerpt from that speech that appeared in the Winter issue of "The Alumnus", Dickinson alumni magazine:

"Thirty years ago, accident rather than design, associated me with the active administration of the athletics at Dickinson. During those thirty years I only saw great sport with all its thrilling enthusiasm, but I became profoundly convinced that intercollegiate athletics are a great and undoubted power. These thirty years, some weary ones, of technical administration in what has been pertly called athletic statesmanship, have convinced me that college football when properly directed and guided is a beneficient dynamic force for good, and when misunderstood and misdirected is a baneful influence, destructive of some of the finest, keenest, and most honorable of educational aspirations.

College football presents to every college a very big and a very serious opportunity of almost unlimited potency for good and evil. It is because I believe that Dickinson has taken advantage of this opportunity for the accomplishment of great good that I am present and speak to you tonight.

I have interest in and sympathy for football at Dickinson because for its control we have adopted norms and rules which must be respected and obeyed, and which are not lightly cast aside to meet the changing emergencies and exigencies of particular seasons or individual games, for the purpose of making the contest safe for victory. Dickinson has demonstrated that athletic idealism is not synonymous with impractically.

I rejoice in the fact Dickinson has assumed the fullest responsibility for its own athletic disposition, attitude, obligation and honor, for I am convinced that within each institution must be located the center of its own moral gravity, and the membership in any association or conference can never be an adequate substitute for the moral autonomy of the individual college.

I am glad that Dickinson has appreciated the truth that there is a close and vital connection between the athletic ideals of an institution, the institutional and public results of athletic rivalry, and the character of its chosen athletic opponents. I believe that it is offensive and reprehensible for any institution which is endeavoring to attain certain athletic ideals to have athletic relationships with another institution which makes neither persistent not effective effort to do likewise. The clamor for such illogical and unethical contests is a familiar and continuous experience which Dickinson has endured but resisted.

I rejoice because Dickinson has not over emphasized the hippodromic features of athletics. The authorities of a college are not living up to their obligation when they use the football team for purposes of advertisement, public jublilation, alleged championships, chambers of commerce or endowment funds. I do not believe that there is an obligation on the part of a college to furnish the public with substitutes for the circus, the prize fight, or the gladiatorial combat."

As Hitchler retired to the sidelines in basketball, he continued to monitor the program through his friend McAndrews. Their friendship endured for over thirty five years.

THE DICKINSON LEGEND - RICHARD H. MCANDREWS

THE DICKINSON LEGEND - RICHARD H. McANDREWS - 1919 - 1947

For the next 27 basketball campaigns, the helm was held by Richard H. "Mac" McAndrews. "Mac" as he was known by three generations of Dickinsonians, not only coached the cagers, but also piloted the baseball team as well for another 23 years. In addition, he served as trainer for all athletic teams from 1911 until 1945. He taught physical education classes and excelled in teaching boxing. Later in his career, McAndrews loved to teach the co-eds how to play tennis. He was a life-long bachelor who resided in Conway Hall. Like Hitchler, "Mac" was a coal cracker from Luzerne, Pennsylvania which is close to Wilkes-Barre.

McAndrews' large and loyal followers through the years honored him with many awards and testimonial dinners, memorials, and scholarships. His advice, humor, and dedicated service to the college has rarely been duplicated. He was brought to the campus in 1911 to serve under football coach Si Pauxtis as head trainer, equipment man, and groundskeeper. He never left the campus in the next ensuing 53 years except to spend the summers with his niece and later his grand niece in Luzerne. "Mac" passed away in 1964 at the age of 84.

McAndrews learned to be a trainer under the tutelage of "Mike" Murphy who was head trainer and track coach at the University of Pennsylvania. "Mike's" son, George, became a movie star and eventually became the Executive Director of the College Sports Hall of Fame then located in New York City. Before arriving on campus, McAndrews was a professional baseball player. His early coaching experience was obtained at Conway Hall, a Carlisle preparatory school, where he helped the various teams. He also served as athletic trainer for all Dickinson teams. The rest is history.

Hitchler, who greatly influenced "Mac's" career, did not quite prepare him for his new venture in the basketball wars. He was winless in his first year - 0 - 6. Only one other team suffered such a disastrous campaign. That team was in 1911-12 when they recorded a 0 - 10 log. Following another sub-par season in 1920-1921, McAndrews developed a team that set the standard for the entire decade of the 1920's. Three straight 10 game win seasons were followed by an 8 - 8 year in 1924-25 which set the stage for one of the best records of all time. The 1925-26 Red and White won 15 and lost only two. Among those scalps were CCNY, a national power who had not lost on their home court since 1919, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Temple, Mt. St. Mary's, perennial Maryland State Champions, George Washington and Delaware. Gettysburg and F&M, arch rivals, were both defeated twice.

Until McAndrews perfected "the five man defense", known later as the zone defense, not many games were won. But starting with the last home victory in the 1920-21 season, this defense was responsible for not allowing a home defeat in the Louther Street gym for seven straight seasons and 46 consecutive wins. This record will never be equaled. The University of Pennsylvania brought this streak to an end in 1929 when they provided the opposition at the opening of Alumni Gymnasium on High Street. In fact, the new gym was a result of Dickinson's court records during the 1920's.

The 1920's era was indeed fantastic and this record continued through the 1930-31 season. That year the basketball squad compiled a 14 - 2 log. Before the advent of Alumni Gym, most of the big name schools were contested on the road. Travelling by bus and train, the Red Devils were a big threat and always provided a thrilling game. Therefore, the winning percentages take on an even more impressive stance. The benchmark on foreign courts was usually considered as an addition of ten more points for the home team.

The decade of the 1930's did not fare as well. The depression could have been an influence because the last winning year before 1940-41 was 8 - 6 by Captain Eddie Steele's 1934-35 squad. As the war clouds gathered once again in Europe, Dickinson basketball appeared to be reviving. However, after a curtailed schedule in 1942-43, the Devils only lost 1943-44 without a schedule. As travel restrictions lessened in the later stages of the war, a freshmen dominated team took to the hardwoods in a revival of basketball in 1944-45. Intramural competition replaced the intercollegiate program in 1943-44.

The last team to perform for the Red and White at the beginning of the war showed great promise. But with enlistments, draft notices and the like, the year was abruptly ended when there were too few players left to complete the abbreviated schedule. There were two freshmen on this squad that were to return after the conflict to lead Dickinson to the heights in basketball. Both were from Camp Hill, Pennsylvania. John D. Hopper, the leading scorer, and 6'4" Vincent J. Schafmeister, the top rebounder and third leading scorer, gained valuable experience that was to stand them in good stead upon their return.

"Mac" entered his last campaign in 1946-47 and produced another outstanding record with a 15 - 3 regular season record. This team was every bit as talented and versatile as the 1925-26 team. Hopper and Schafmeister were joined by returning war veterans Eugene A. Evans, Francis C. Noonan, Sr., Weston C. Overholt, and James C. Polley. Pooley was the sixth man in the above formidable line-up. In fact, the entire starting five of this team have been inducted into the Dickinson College Sports Hall of Fame. This is the only time that this has ever happened in the sports program.

McAndrews had countless players to become basketball coaches. To mention a few would be appropriate at this juncture. They are Fred E. Sweely '28, Hugh K. Johnston '24, Percy C. Wilson '35, Charles H. B. "Chick" Kennedy '34, Benjamin D. James '34, John D. Hopper '48, Francis C. Noonan '48, Eugene A. Evans '49, Weston C. Overholt '50, George Shuman '37, Clarence B. Hendrickson, and many, many more. Most of them stayed in the profession only a short time but Evans, Noonan, and Kennedy made a career in teaching and coaching.

When asked the question as to who his greatest players were, "Mac" never hesitated and quickly names Fred E. Sweely, Tom Foley, and John Hopper. Both Sweely and Foley played in a different era than Hopper, but all three contributed in their own unique ways to create a winning atmosphere and outstanding team records. Sweely and Hopper were top scorers and team captains. Sweely scored over 550 points in the center jump era, while Hopper topped 800 points in a war shortened career. Foley was a play maker par excellence as well as team captain. All three led their teams to the three best records ever, until 1964-65.

Some of the most notable tributes to McAndrews and his career are as follows: testimonial dinners following his 25th year at the college in 1936 and again following his 50th year in association with the college in 1961; D-Club set up a scholarship in his honor after his retirement in 1949; D-Club named the outstanding athlete of the year in his honor also in 1949, and later added the outstanding female athlete to that honored list; the faculty and administration further honored him at graduation in 1959 by bestowing upon him the Honorary Doctor of Physical Education; permitted him to remain living in Conway Hall for the remainder of his life. His portrait presently hangs in the Kline Life/Sports Learning Center which is a fitting tribute for his life long committment to Dickinson athletics.

His 27 years as head coach of basketball at one institution had been a record nationally well into the 1950's. Few coaches at Dickinson would ever match his longevity in a sport. The stories about "Mac" are legion and each generation of athletes have their favorites. His familiar "What the hell, boy" was known by all. McAndrews only learned to drive after his retirement. His driving ability was practically zero. His trips home to the "Valley" at vacation times conjure some harrowing tales. Others remember him for his weak constitution when the games were close in the last two minutes of play. He was almost never in the gym during those close finishes. His betting skills were well honed. Upon his retirement, officials cleaned out his desk for removal from the gym, and found hundreds of nickles in the drawers. After winning a bet, "Mac" always told you to throw the money in the desk drawer. McAndrews wanted every football coach to include his favorite play in their game plans. This play was the old flea flicker which was a pass to the end who would lateral the ball to the halfback. It was razzle dazzle at its best.

McAndrews' overall record was 203 wins, 195 losses, and 1 tie for a 51 percentage. The tie game was an interesting story. The game ended 29 - 29 with Gettysburg at Gettysburg. The overtime period had begun and not more than 30 seconds had elapsed when the Gettysburg scorekeeper rushed up to the referee and stated that there was an error in the final totals for the regulation time. He stated that the score should read 30 - 29 in favor of Gettysburg. The Gettysburg team immediately left the floor and were celebrating their victory. The referee then awarded the game to Gettysburg. Because there were no official conference or governing body in existence at the time, the college could not protest this biased decision. "The Dickinsonian" and "The Microcosm" divided their opinion on the decision by the referee. The former begrudgingly accepted the 30 - 29 score. However, the latter listed the game score as 29 - 29. Examining the facts, as reported, the referee should have checked the scorekeepers books and recognized the discrepancy before the overtime period began. Once the overtime began, he should have let the period run to its conclusion. Therefore, I have allowed the tie to stand in the records.

The above percentage of McAndrews career record is not outstanding. But, you must remember the times, the material, the finances, the college philosophy, and the opponents. Taking all this into perspective, the record was quite credible.

McAndrews' most prolific scorers through the years were Frank G. Smith, Clarence M. Wallace, Fred E. Sweely, Joseph J. Myers, John R. "Jack" Neiman, John D. Hopper, and Weston C. Overholt. Each held the scoring record in turn, either for three or four year career. Overholt really only played one season for "Mac" but he should be included. Wallace was the only one who did not break the scoring record, but he was McAndrews' and the college's first outstanding big, good center. The 6"4" athlete from Middletown, Pennsylvania played professional basketball during his medical school studies and later spent a career in medicine as a general practioner in Hummelstown, Pennsylvania, until his death.

The October 1964 issue of the "Alumnus" magazine states best the feeling that the college had for the venerable McAndrews. The following is a reprint of that article:

"Mac as he was known to three generations of Dickinson students, will always occupy an honored spot at the College where his achievements are not only to be found in the record books; but also are part of the tradition of the institution. They are etched, too, in the hearts and minds of Dickinsonians as well as colleagues and the community. 'His spirit and presence were strong forces on the campus', said Dr. Howard Lane Rubendall, president of the College. 'He imparted greater influence over a longer period of time than any other person connected with sports at Dickinson'.

Richard H. MacAndrews, 84 at the time of his death September 9, last, was a Dickinson legend by the time he retired in 1949 with the rank of Associate Professor emeritus of physical education, but he never entirely stepped out of the sports scene. He continued to live at the College and to keep in touch with the teams as advisory coach.

Mac was identified with College athletics for 53 years, including 28 as basketball coach - the sport for which he was best known.

After a four-year period of professional baseball in the old Tri-State, Hudson River and Virginia leagues where he earned recognition as a catcher of note he came to Dickinson in 1911 as team trainer and the rest is history.

He became baseball coach in 1918, added the job of basketball coach the following year and was named assistant in physical education in 1920. He helped develop the College's extensive intramural program.

But 'Mac' was best known beyond the campus for his basketball. One of the first Eastern coaches to employ the five-man zone defense back in the middle 1920's, he developed championship teams with that system. His 1926 squad, which he termed his best, lost but two games and numbered among its conquests CCNY, Penn, Princeton, and Temple. He added a 14-2 record in 1931.

Boasting numerous plaques, commendations and other forms of recognition for his contribution to intercollegiate athletics, 'Mac', in 1959, had an honorary degree conferred upon him by the College.

He was quick to leave the campus when his beloved 'boys' (as all students were known by him, and as they continued to be as graduates, no matter how old they were) departed for Summer vacations. Then it was back to his native Luzerne for three months with friends and relatives there until Convocation in September.

'Mac' was laid to rest Saturday, September 12, 1964, in St. Mary's Cemetery in Hanover Township in the company of departed members of his family and others he had loved during the course of his meaningful life. A delegation from the College joined many of his friends at the service.

A scholarship fund and a marker near the Alumni Gym will remind future generations of his contribution to the College and to American youth."

Season Hi-Lites

A new season under a new coach with everybody returning from the previous year except two starters.
Richard H. "Mac" McAndrews really got a baptism of fire when every opponent doubled the score except the last game of the season at home with F&M.
This was the second and last winless season. The only other occurred in 1911-12 when the Red and White logged a 0 - 10 campaign.
Law student, Jacob M. Cohen presented a trophy in the late 20's to award a Dickinson player for outstanding performance during the season. It was called the Phi Epsilon Pi MVP Trophy. This was awarded into the 60's.
Cohen also use to entertain the players after the season in Philadelphia.
Starting with this year and every year thereafter,"Mac" had a reserve team. Some called it the "scrubs" and others called it a sub varsity.

Season Hi-Lites

Frank G. Smith, sophomore, established himself as an excellent foul shooter.

The away game with Gettysburg was very controversial. The game is discussed below.

Freshman center,6'4" Clarence M. Wallace, along with classmates, the Johnston brothers, caused a mild enthusiasm for next years' team.

The controversial tie game with Gettysburg at Gettysburg needs some explanation concerning the facts that appear in print. The score was 29 - 29 at the end of regulation time. The referee from the Harrisburg YMCA was apparently satisified that the score was correct to that point because he allowed the overtime period to begin. Approximately thirty seconds into the overtime period, the Gettysburg scorekeeper stoped the game and indicated that an error had been made in his book and the score was really 30 - 29 in favor of Gettysburg. The Battlefielders immediately walked off the floor and enthusiastically celebrated their victory. The official then declared them victors.

"The Gettysburgian", campus newspaper, gives that version. The Red and White had no recourse because there was no one to protest the events that abruptly ended the contest. "The Dickinsonian", at first listed the game as a tie, but later conceded reluctantly that Gettysburg had won with the official's help. "The Microcosm", in the season's summary, still reported it as a tie.

Examining the facts, it appears that the official was not fair when he declared the Gettysburg team the victors. The Dickinson scorekeeper had the score as 29 - 29 at the end of regulation time. The fact that he had allowed the beginning of the extra period indicated that he ipso facto believed the score to be tied. Therefore, he should have allowed the extra period to continue to its rightful conclusion.

Thus, the record has been allowed to stand as a tie game in the season's records. Gettysburg carries the game as a victory in their files. The Dickinsonians had a legitimate claim to a tie because the game was never finished.

Since game by game statistics are not available at Dickinson, we had to report both summaries.

Season Hi-Lites

This was the most successful season in the history of basketball with ten wins and only six losses.
Beat Gettysburg twice and split with F&M.
McAndrews, losing the first three games, experimented with a cohesive unit and the end of the season found the starting five to be a different one than the one that began the season.
Undefeated at home for the season and combined with the win over Ursinus in the last game of the year in 1920-21 the streak hit seven straight on the home court.
Frank G. Smith hit his stride from the fifteen foot line by canning 143 fouls out of 218 tries for a 65.5%
McAndrews had molded a fine team that really was a team. His five man defense started to have some results. In the final starting five was youth combined with upperclass experience.

Note - In compiling the season's final individual statistics, they sometimes differ from the Microcosm or Dickinsonian figures. The reason for this is the fact that all figures for individual games were gathered from newspapers, other college student newspapers and year books. There are no scorebooks available. In each case, the player was always given the highest figure in final totals.

Season Hi-Lites

New rule this season which allowed the player fouled to shoot his own foul shot. In the past each team had a designated shooter.
Clarence M. Wallace, the 6'4" center from Middletown, PA ended a brilliant four year career. See record section below.
Wallace was the only four year letterman on the squad but Phil and Hugh Johnston, and Harold S. Irwin lettered three years. The four players won 30 games and lost only 15 during their careers.(.666%)
Added seven more scalps to extend their home record undefeated for the third year in a row. This pushed the record to 19 straight wins at home.
This was the second best record - 10 - 5 = .666% (beat 10 - 6 = .625% in 1921-22)
Wallace scored 444 career points (201 fgs + 42 fts)(second best career mark to Smith's 469 set last season)

Season Hi-Lites

The season broke even. Not much was expected of this team because of the loss of three members of the "wonder team" from last year.
Finished the home season again without a loss to make it four straight and 24 consecutive wins.
Defeated Gettysburg and Mt. St. Mary's at home but lost to them on the road.
Played only five out of sixteen games at home.
Lost a close game with CCNY in New York City. They were Eastern Champions the previous year.
Added a trip to New England this season which proved to be disastrous.

Records

Undefeated at home for fourth year - Ties 1921-22; 1922-23; 1923-24
Consecutive win streak at home - 24 games (breaks 19 set last year)

Season Hi-Lites

Finished the home season without a loss for the fifth straight year.
Beat both Gettysburg and F&M twice in the same year.
The 15 - 2 was the best record since the inception of basketball.
The win in New York City against CCNY was their first home loss since 1919.
Began the season with seven straight wins and closed with six straight wins. Georgetown and PMC were the only losses. The PMC loss was particularly hard to swallow because one of their players threw in a desperation circus shot with only seconds to go to gain the win. The PMC game was also their fifth game in nine days.
Crowned the Class B Champions of the East.
There were no seniors on the team.

Records

Best record, 15 - 2, in the short history of basketball (beats 1921-22; 1922-23; 1923-24 - all had 10 wins)
Best winning percentage - .882% (beats .714% set by 1922-23 with 10 - 4 log)
No home losses for the fifth straight year - streak now 31 in a row.
Most points one season - 574 - (Beats 477 set by 1921-22)

Season-Hi-Lites

A lot of tight ball games this season. Captain Kennedy won the Lebanon Valley game with a mid-court shot in the last seconds of the game.
The Gettysburg loss at home was their first win at Dickinson since 1921 and the first time that they won the two game series for the season since 1911-12. They came close in 1920-21 when the first game ended in a 29-29 tie.
The home loss to Gettysburg was also the only home loss for the season but The Devils could only win one away game.
Put together back to back winning seasons - 1932-33 and 1933-34.
Don S. Mills, law student, coached the frosh.

Season Hi-Lites

First losing season since 1931 - 1932. Bill Kintzing received an ankle injury in the Gettysburg game in a mild upset. Red Devils were 4 - 5 at the time. In the remaining 9 games, Dickinson was close in every one but two. Kintzing's height and scoring ability would have certainly turned a few of those games into victories.

Williamsport was preparing for the YMCA tournament. They divided their team in half and played both Dickinson and Lock Haven Teachers. The scoring is part of the season but not included in the official season results.

The West Virginia game was played in Harrisburg's Zembo Mosque but was considered a home game for the Devils.

Karl Radley tutored the freshman team.

Season Hi-Lites

This is Coach Richard H. McAndrews 24th season at the helm of the Red Devils
In the first two games a two platoon system was used with the last years varsity players - Olewiler, Kenety, DeForrest, Freeman, Collins, and others - then three frosh - Hopper, Schafmeister, and Casey teamed with McGee, McInroy, and Woerle
William H. "Ace" Kenety, Marshall B. "Mike" DeForrest, and Norman R. Olewiler were graduated at mid-January graduation following the first two games.
Palmer S. McGee and James L. "Sonny" Bacon were already in the service before the season began.
The top six scorers for the year played the bulk of the season after mid-term.
After the Western Maryland game on February 13 five players were called to the military service including Schafmeister.
The President of Dickinson, Fred P. Corson cancelled the two remaining games on the schedule. All Spring and following fall schedules were also cancelled.
Least number of games since 1918-19 schedule.

Season HiLites:

Coach Richard H. McAndrews tried to informally reinstitute varsity basketball with an all freshmen cast. Many players participated but few lacked the talent to compete with other schools. Co-eds had an abbreviated schedule in the Spring semester. The five lettermen this year could not play on the future teams. Only Howard L. Hoffman, a Carlisle lad, was good enough to be on the roster.

Season Hi-Lites

Typical post-war team. Everybody was a basketball player. The first half of the season was average. Team composed of some 1944 -45 members plus two freshmen and a few veterans of the war. In the second half of the season beginning in February, John D. Hopper and Francis C. Noonan returned along with three or four other war veterans to give the team a solid front line. Only William A. Landt, Conrad Kahler, and Warren H. Spencer logged any playing time in the second half of the campaign.

John D. Hopper was awarded the Phi Epsilon Pi MVP Trophy for 1945-46.

Captain Warren H. Spencer, wounded war vet, was accorded Honorable Mention AP All Pennsylvania.

Richard H. "Mac" McAndrews completed 34 years of service to Dickinson College

Did not play F&M or Gettysburg.

Entire starting five were underclassmen and all would return for 1947-48 campaign.
The Cohen Phi Epsilon Pi MVP Trophy was won by John D. Hopper. Second year in a row for the award.
Won eleven games in a row between the Rutgers and Bucknell defeats.
Rutgers loss saw Noonan playing with a fever and Vince Schafmeister not playing because he was on his honeymoon.

CHARLES H. B. "CHICK" KENNEDY - 1947 - 1951

CHARLES H. B. "CHICK" KENNEDY - 1947 - 1951

In 1947, a new coach assumed command of the fast rising Red Devils. Not since 1919 had there been any other coach except "Mac" McAndrews. "Chick" was brought to the campus in 1942 by Benjamin D. James as an instructor in the Army Air Corps Cadet program which was starting at Dickinson. Ben was chosen by President Corson to install a physical training program for the 750 cadets. Included on the staff was McAndrews, George Hansell, John Steckbeck, Al Franckle, and Reverend Shank. Kennedy had been a teacher-coach in the Boiling Springs, Pennsylvania school district near Carlisle.

"Chick" had been most fortunate to inherit a veteran ball club. As previously mentioned the starting five of Hopper, Noonan, Evans, Schafmeister, and Overholt were to gain Dickinson immortality in the basketball pantheon.

Kennedy's maiden team lived up to their advanced billing. They were the equal of the past great teams. Their overall record was 16 - 4. They won one more and lost one more than the 1946-47 squad. The two year combined record rivaled the previous best established by the 1925-26 and 1926-27 teams. The 1920's teams might argue that their schedules were slightly more tough, but the post-war years had just as tough opponents. Every adversary had squads that had older, smarter, more talented, and wiser returning war veterans on their rosters.

The most exciting game of that first season was the Columbia University game. The lead changed hands twelve times before the Morningside Heights team won, 48 - 46. The Red Devils valiantly played out their collective hearts. Only the outstanding play of Walt Budko, Columbia's All American Center, saved the day for the visitors. Close on the heels of that loss, Gettysburg caught the Devils in a let down and dealt them a stunning 57 - 45 loss. It was the first time in two years that Dickinson suffered back to back losses.

The only other regular season loss was delivered by CCNY in New York City. CCNY was listed by the sports writers as one of the two top basketball quintets in the nation. Their three deep squad poured it on in the second half after the Red Devils played them to a virtual stand still in the opening stanza. The 81 - 52 loss was the worst suffered in many years.

The entire season was exciting and full of action. Included were one six game and another seven game win streak. The team performed so well that the Middle Atlantic Conference invited Dickinson to participate in their post-season tournament as an at-large entry. The tournament was staged at the University of Pennsylvania's Palestra in Philadelphia. Dickinson's first opponent was Môravian College who surprised the Devils. The loss was made worst because high scorer, John D. Hopper, was sent to the side-lines with an ankle injury. The following night the Devils easily beat PMC in the consolation game.

The records for this era were very difficult to research because any added games to the schedule were never included in the regular season statistics. After 1955, all games played were included in all the compilations of statistics. Therefore, several years statistics prior to 1955 have two sets of figures included in the individual season's summaries. In fairness to all individual players caught in that dilemma, the highest individual and team stats are included in the records. This then is the reason for adding Wes Overholt's name to the 1000 point club. In fact, Wes was the first player in Dickinson basketball history to crack that barrier. No recognition was given to this accomplishment at that time.

With only the high scoring Hopper and 5'2" Noonan lost from the squad through graduation, the prospects were never brighter. Hopper became the first player to top 800 points in a war shortened career. Noonan contributed his floor skills and screening ability so that Hopper might shoot his set shot. After graduation, Noonan began a teaching and coaching career in the Hanover Public Schools and Hopper had a tryout with the St. Louis Bombers of the National Professional Basketball league. Having made the team, Hopper decided not to sign a contract for the regular season. "Hop" then entered the Dickinson School of Law. He played in the Eastern Professional League with the Harrisburg Capitols as he earned his law degree. Upon graduation from law school, Hopper entered the insurance field and today serves as a State Senator from his home district, Camp Hill.

With three returning veterans, the outlook was indeed rosy. Led by Co-Captains Evans and Schafmeister, the second edition of Kennedy's had another fine year. For the regular season they finished 11 - 6. This record earned them another at-large bid to the eight team expanded MAC tournament. The Wagner College Seahawks sent the Devils to the side-lines early as they eliminated them in the first round.

As the 1949-50 season approached, only one four year letter winner remained from "Mac's" last season. Captain Wes Overholt carried that fire and spirit into another 11 - 6 campaign. In addition to his breaking the 1000 point barrier, he scored in every game he appeared (74), and set the Alumni Gym single game scoring record with 39 points against Juniata. His four year total won-lost record as a player has not been equaled (54 wins - 20 losses = .729). Presently a Philadelphia lawyer, Wes helped coach the baby Devils while he attended the Dickinson School of Law.

With Dick Zilling assuming the scoring leadership, the 1950-51 squad ran hot and cold. All of the post-war veterans had graduated and the game returned to the high school boys. The highlight of the season was the upset of highly favored Bucknell in the season's finale in Alumni Gym. The 7 - 13 record sharply pointed out the need for a well-rounded team with all players contributing to the success of the campaign.

Kennedy did not know it at the time, but the 1950-51 year was to be his last at the helm of Dickinson's basketball fortunes. In August 1951, "Chick" passed away from complications caused by hypertension. Kennedy was on the threshold of an outstanding career in college coaching and administration. He served as athletics director as well as chairman of the physical education department.

His overall record was 46 wins and 30 losses for a .605 percentage. The regular season marks were 43 wins and 26 losses for a .623 percentage. This was the best career coaching record in the fifty two year history of the sport at Dickinson.

Season Hi-Lites

Best two year performance by winning 29 and losing 5. Beat 27 and 6 established in 1925-26 and 1926-27.
Made the MAC Playoffs for the first time in history. Moravian suprised the Devils in the first round played at the Penn Palestra. John D. Hopper injuried his ankle in the Moravian game and did not play in the PMC win.
Only Gettysburg, CCNY, and Columbia, the Ivy League defending champions, defeated the Devils in regular season play. The Gettysburg and Columbia defeats were the first back to back losses in two years.
Played the Harrisburg Pros for the second year in a row for the benefit of the local Kiwanis Club. The Club used the money for the benefit of sending under privileged children to summer camp at Laurel Lake.
The CCNY game proved to be the worst defeat in thirty games. (In terms of score)
Columbia game was a great moral victory for the Kennedymen. Probably caused the let down in the Gettysburg game which followed in January.
The PMC game marked the close of a two year run of one of the best teams ever assembled at Dickinson - Hopper, Noonan, Schafmeister, Evans, Overholt and sixth man Pooley who was declared ineligible in February because of scholastic difficulties.

Post Season Honors

Invited to the Middle Atlantic Conference Playoffs in Philadelphia for the first time.
John D. Hopper was selected by the AP on its All Pennsylvania First Team.
Little Three (Dickinson, F&M, and Gettysburg) selected John D. Hopper and Weston C. Overholt to their first team. Vincent J. Schafmeister was accorded honorable mention.

Field goals, total points, and per game average are a single season standard.
The 1077 total points are a team record for most points scored in one season and the per game average, 63.3, is also a record
A new floor record for most points by a Dickinson team was set when the Devils scored 88 against Haverford (H).
However, Frank Keath, Elizabethtown's scoring sensation popped in 36 points to set a new Alumni Gym floor record for an individual on December 10, 1947.

Season Hi-Lites

Received an MAC bid for the second year in a row. Playoffs expanded to eight teams instead of four.

Navy gave us the worst defeat since WWII

Weston C. Overholt had a great scoring year. Deeds are listed below.

Played another Kiwanis benefit game for under privileged children.

With the graduation of Co-Captains Evans and Schafmeister, only Weston C. Overholt remained from the 29 - 5 years of 1946-47 and 1947-48.

Records

Joe Noertker of the U. of Virginia broke Frank Keath's one year old floor record at Alumni Gym. He scored 37 points to best Keath by 1 point.
Weston C. Overholt then proceeded to break Noertker's seventeen day old record by gunning in 39 points against Juniata on 16 FG's and 7 FT's.
Broke last year's team scoring record by four points - 1081
Weston C. Overholt broke Neiman's three year scoring record: (610)

1946-47	56	38	= 150 +8	17 games = 8.8 avg	= 158
1947-48	72	71	= 215+48	17 games = 12.6 avg	= 263
1948-49	103	90	= 296+18	17 games = 17.4 avg	= 314
3 years	231	199	= 661+74	51 games = 12.9 avg	735

Overholt's 98 free throws represents the best one season total since each man shot his own fouls back in 1923-24. Also his 223 is the best three year record since 1923-24. The total of 735 points is also tops for three year career. The reason for the change is that the pre and post-season games were added to his totals.

Swarthmore was a pre-season game and thus was not considered as part of the season's statistics.

Season Hi-Lites

Only three seniors on the team - John E. Slike, Elwood J. "Oop" Long, and Marvin A. Zucker.
There were two added games during the season - the pre-season game in York with Swarthmore and the Lebanon Valley holiday tournament against Elizabethtown.
William L. Stark had a great night against F&M at home when he scored 36 points on 16 field goals + 4 free throws.
Richard G. Zilling scored 32 points vs. LV (H) = 15 fgs + 2 fts.
Upset Bucknell (H) in the final game. Game ended in a fight with Marvin A. Zucker sinking the clinching points.
Zilling shot double figures in 15 out of 19 games to win his second straight scoring crown with over 300 points.
W. J. Gobrecht scored the winning field goal vs. Juniata (H) in a 62 - 61 win.
Made a trip to New England to play Trinity and then on the way home played Wagner on Staten Island.

JOHN D. HOPPER - 1951 - 1952

JOHN D. HOPPER - 1951 - 1952

The sudden death of Coach Kennedy created a void in the athletic department and the basketball position. The Board of Athletic Control decided to appoint an interim coach until a more thorough search could be made. Chosen for the season was former Devil scoring great John D. Hopper who was a senior at the Dickinson School of Law. Board members George Shuman and Dean Walter H. Hitchler were instrumental in the appointment. Wes Overholt served as the frosh coach. Both Hopper and Overholt formed one of the youngest coaching staffs in the country. The results were far from gratifying. The 1 - 18 record was the worst since 1944-45 (1 - 9) and before that in 1919-20 (0 - 6).

The record does not tell the entire story. With two 300 plus scorers returning from Kennedy's last season, there was great optimism aplenty. However, the season was fraught with "what ifs". It really was a case of no team work.

Coach Hopper, much to his credit, tried every possible combination to provide a winning five. The team lacked depth, height, and more importantly, leadership. Zilling ended his career as the all-time career scorer for a three year period. This record stood until 1957-58.

Season Hi-Lites

Worst season since 1944-45 season (1 - 9) and 1919-20 (0 - 6). Both were the result of world wars.
Richard G. Zilling had another 300+ scoring season with 15 games in double figures. This gave him three 300+ seasons in a row. See records below.
Season included 14 game losing streak. Appeared to be friction between the two top scorers which divided the team in half.
Rookie coach John D. Hopper was appointed interim coach when Charles H. B. "Chick" Kennedy died the summer of 1951. Hopper was a last year law student.
Much credit must go to Coach Hopper for trying many different combinations on the court to garner a victory. He was ably assisted by law student Weston C. Overholt, Dickinson's all time top scorer until this season.

ALURED C. "SLIM" RANSOM - 1952 - 1955

ALURED C. "SLIM" RANSOM - 1952 - 1955

With the departure of interim coach, John D. Hopper, an entirely new regime entered the athletic department. Spearheaded by the Board of Athletic Control, Alured C. "Slim" Ransom was employed to turn around the fortunes of the football and basketball programs. Ransom came to Dickinson from Washington and Jefferson College in Western Pennsylvania. A Geneva College product, "Slim" quickly started to reshape the athletic department.

His three year record of 21 wins and 35 losses for a .375 percentage, was not impressive, but he had the basketeers pointed in the right direction. He moved the program from a first year 4 - 14 log to a winning record in his last season with a 10 - 9 log. This was the first winning campaign since 1949-50.

The first year's record can be attributed to the fact that there were no seniors on the squad. In his last year he had another sharp shooting high scorer in the mold of Overholt. James P. Connor, a Wilkes-Barre Coughlin High star, was an excellent jump shooter. Before Connor at Dickinson, the two hand set shot, as well as the drive shot were the vogue. After Connor, jump shooting became the rage on the Red Devil teams.

Had Connor stayed in school for three years, he would have rewritten the scoring record book. However, he did set the two year scoring record with 770 points. The first year he performed for Ransom and in the last year under DuCharme.

In 1953-54 season, a little excitement was engendered at Alumni Gym when eventual National Champion LaSalle came to play the Red Devils. Led by their All-American, Tom Gola, the game itself was not close, but the game provided an intense battle between Gola and Dickinson's Joe Katchik. Joe had just transferred to Dickinson in the second semester from Notre Dame where he was on a four year scholarship for football. The 6'9" Plymouth, Pennsylvania product had been chosen as the pre-season sophomore football player of the year in the nation. An early season thigh problem dashed these hopes. Becoming disillusioned with big time athletics, Katchik enrolled at Dickinson through admissions director Benjamin D. James. The fans really enjoyed the encounter by both big men. Joe told Dot and Gene Evans, later, that playing against the All-American Gola was his biggest sports thrill .

Following a misunderstanding of Dickinson's program policy, the BAC did not renew Ransom's contract. Feeling that his position as athletic director, football, and basketball coach was not on solid ground, "Slim" resigned when neither party could amicably agree on each other's position. "Slim's" frosh coach, Lindy Lauro, former Chicago Cardinal halfback, had high scoring teams. He departed with Ransom and went on to build a most successful football program at New Castle High in Western Pennsylvania.

JOSEPH G. DUCHARME - 1955 - 1964

JOSEPH G. DUCHARME - 1955 - 1965

The termination of Ransom's tenure created a void in the athletic department as all members left for other positions. The Board of Athletic Control settled on the employment of two Wyoming Seminary coaches to direct the athletic fortunes of the Red Devils. David B. Eavenson was selected to serve as Athletics Director with additional coaching duties. Jo seph G. DuCharme was selected as basketball, track, and assistant football coach.

The entire basketball program had to be rebuilt around top scorer Connor. Finding mostly role players, DuCharme had his assignment cut out for him. One sophomore, G. Raymond Weaver, did develop into a high scorer as the season progressed. Connor and Weaver complemented each other in the scoring department. Connor topped the single season scoring record by throwing in 389 points. However, the MVP trophy was awarded to Captain Donald A. Leggett. Although not a popular choice, Leggett was a strong team player and his great defensive play helped him win the coveted award.

The 2 - 17 record was a far cry from the previous winning season. But the future was bright because of the return of the scoring twins for the 1956-57 season. However, it was not to happen because Connor dropped out of school in his senior year. It remained for Weaver to pick up the scoring slack. The year was unusual. Opening with a win and closing with a win, the Red Devils lost nineteen consecutive games which still remains as a college team record. No other season produced such an unbelievable year.

In Ray Weaver's last year, 1957-58, he really "blew hot" and scored at a record breaking pace. He ended the season with 1023 career points. The high point was in the F&M home game in which he dumped 42 points through the hoops to establish a new Alumni Gym record for most points in a single game. The 9 - 10 log was best in DuCharme's three years. Part of the success could be attributed to having three other squad members who all scored over 200 points each for the season.

Just as Joe thought that he had turned the corner, two less than .500 campaigns followed. Then in 1960-61 an even, 9 - 9, season occurred. The next two years brought a 4 - 13 and a 3 - 13 results. The alumni and various groups were unhappy about the basketball programs direction. But you must remember the admissions department under the direction of Dr. Benjamin D. James continued to supply the talent pool with excellent potential. Then in 1963-64, DuCharme led a talent-laden team to the first winning season in his nine year tenure.

Because of a reorganization within the athletic staff, the entire members of the department were given only two coaching assignments. DuCharme had great success with track and cross country, therefore, he was retained in those two positions and given the additional duties as chairman of the physical education department. The college also reorganized their student services by appointing Dr. Benjamin D. James as the first Dean of Students.

Dr. James had served as Dean of Admissions since 1946 when he returned from the Navy. It was due to his work and contacts that many student-athletes were recruited. Especially noteworthy was the contingent from his home town of Plymouth, Pennsylvania. Dr. James, along with George Shuman, had served on the BAC since 1941. However, when Dr. Howard Lane Rubendall became president, the Board ceased to exist because he did not ever call them to meet. The athletic fortunes were delegated to the Dean of Student Services.

Dr. James, in conjunction with Athletics Director Eavenson, coordinated the changes in the department. These changes were needed for a long time.

One outstanding move during DuCharme's era was the joining of the Middle Atlantic Conference in all sports. The basketball team was placed in the very demanding Northern Division. Later, they were moved to the Southern Division where they competed with schools that we had natural ties with and similar philosophies.

In addition to Connor and Weaver, DuCharme had many other talented players on his teams. It would be appropriate to mention those players at this time. Eugene M. Becker from York William Penn High School topped the 1000 point barrier in his last game at Lebanon Valley College. Not only was he a scorer, but he broke the rebounding record as well. A four year letter winner and starter, Gene was consistently the leader in all those games for four years. On his best team was Dave Thomas, a transfer from Davidson College, Don Smith, high scorer and member of the 1000 point club, J. Dallas Winslow, tough board man, Richie Shapiro, rebounder and scorer, and Tony Hermann, play maker. These players combined in 1964-65 to rival the top quintets of the 1940's and 1920's.

Coach DuCharme's nine year record was 56 wins and 114 losses for a .329 percentage. Over those nine years many of the close games, if won, would have reversed that record. But those "what ifs" never occurred and brought to a close another coaching era.

EDWARD J. ASHNAULT - 1964 - 1967

EDWARD J. ASHNAULT - 1964 - 1967

The next coach hired by Dickinson was one of a kind in the coaching ranks. Edward J. Ashnault was ready for Dickinson but Dickinson was not ready for him. Dipping into the high school coaching ranks, Ashnault brought a fierce pride to the campus. He completely upset the staid decorum that former coaches had demonstrated in the 190 year old institution. His innovative approach to coaching basketball and other sports seemed rather brash. He had had a highly successful program at Wilton High School in Connecticut. The search committee must have felt that this was the approach that was needed at this time. And, just maybe, they were not aware of his volatile temper. Recommended by Boston Celtic Coach "Red" Auerbach, Ashnault never left a doubt in anyone's mind that Dickinson was just a stop in his climb to a Division I program.

His good fortune in 1964 was to find a talent-laden veteran team. Changing almost every aspect of DuCharme's program, Ed quickly ran the squad into the boards. There was only one way to play the game and that was 100% at all times. Anything less was not acceptable. You never missed practice and you never stopped running. His version of the fast break was to fill the three lanes running to the basket and never stop until the ball was in the basket. Although not a strong defensive coach, Ed's"overshoes" zone press rattled most opponents into committing countless errors.

He was quick to win concessions from the athletic administration. For example, by moving the tables aside in the gym during final examination period, he practiced there when not allowed; he scheduled night practices and allowed someone else to argue about it, forcing other gym activities to work around him. There were other incidences but they are too numerous to mention here.

With his vast knowledge and drive, Ashnault led his first edition to a 16 - 5 record and an MAC - Southern Division Championship. He was brilliant in molding the available talent. His first game at Washington College in Chestertown, Maryland was a harbinger of future victories. It also established his credibility as a coach of note. Down more than 12 points with approximately two minutes to go, Ashnault instituted a full court press that Washington could not break. With the score tied 105-105 in regulation, the overtime proved to be all Dickinson as they won 117 - 113. This memorable win was just the spring board that the players needed to believe in the new coach and his system. Also the half-time locker room oratory was one never to be forgotten by all those in attendance.

His 9 - 2 MAC record propelled the team into the playoffs where he won the first basketball championship. The Southern Champs then played the Northern Champs, Albright, for the overall championship. Albright proved to be too tough and Dickinson succumbed in an exciting game at Muhlenberg College.

The prospects for the 1965-66 season were bright because only three seniors would graduate. Unfortunately the three, Thomas, Shapiro, and Hermann were the heart of the team in their all-around play. There appeared to be enough depth on the squad and indeed the prospects for defending the crown were bright. Returning high scorer, Don Smith, top rebounder Dallas Winslow, Jon Zimmerman, Jerry Solot, and play makers Ed Fedok and Phil Fogli made the fans very optimistic. The welding of these athletes into a cohesive unit would have them bringing back memories of the 1946-48 dynasty. Both had approximately the same percentage of wins.

One novel idea that was carried forth this year but was orginated in DuCharme's last season was the playing of Hamilton and Hobart Colleges. F&M and Dickinson had played these two institutions at Alumni Gym one night and then, trading opponents, played at F&M the following night. This season, F&M and Dickinson would hop a bus for the return engagements at the New York schools. It was a great experience for all four teams. This interaction allows for the athletes of all teams to see how the other half lives in the intercollegiate basketball world.

The 1965-66 year did not reach expected goals that many followers had hoped would occur. The well-rounded group that had won the championship the previous year was not in evidence this season. The depth was lacking and the overall play of Thomas was missing as well as Shapiro's rebounding and Hermann's fire and play making. Smith again topped the 400 point plateau to push his total to a record breaking 1094. The 13 - 6 record was excellent but five of the six losses occurred in the MAC and left them out of the playoff picture. However, this was the first time in nineteen years that the Devils defeated both Gettysburg and F&M in the same year. The Gettysburg victory was the first one in that series in fifteen confrontations. Gettysburg still was operating a Division I basketball program.

Ashnault's last year was anticlimatic as his team slumped to 10 - 10. The success of this year was from the remaining squad members who had helped win the championship two years earlier. The newly recruited players could not provide the depth. Then, too, Ashnault was not as successful as a recruiter as he was on the basketball court. In fact, only one of his recruits had any success. Ted Jursik was a most outstanding player but his talents would be shown under another coach.

His three year record of 39 wins and 21 losses for a .650 percentage will probaby never be duplicated. But then, had Ashnault stayed as the basketball coach, his record would probably not have been as great because of his lack of recruiting success. He was a coach who knew that Dickinson was just a stop on his way to the top. The big problems was his personal conduct on and off the court. His loud outbursts in the locker room, his referee baiting, and general attitude were responsible for the non-renewal of his contract. He would have moved on eventually, but in this case it was sooner than expected. From Dickinson, he became coach at Colgate and William and Mary. In both places, his decorum created problems. William and Mary finally released him at mid-season. Ed is now a highly successful insurance executive in Williamsburg, Virginia.

There is no doubt about it, Ashnault created a stir in intercollegiate basketball at Dickinson. The athletic administrators in the final analysis felt that his actions were not in the best interest of the image that the college would like to present to the public. Many fans attended the games just to see his reactions to various situations on the court. But the new pride and showmanship was a change from previous coaches.

Some records show that Don Smith scored 1082 points are correct but everyone tends to over look the 12 points as a frosh when he was promoted to the varsity late in the 1962-63 season.
J. Dallas Winslow finished his career with 689 rebounds - 9.0 avg to just miss the career record by one rebound held by Richie Shapiro

DAVID L. WATKINS - 1967 - 1978

DAVID L. WATKINS - 1967 - 1978

Another search began immediately to replace the volatile Ashnault. The athletic administration, along with the physical education department, conducted interviews. They offered the head coaching position to David L. Watkins who was a Penn State graduate and at the time the basketball coach at Montclair State in New Jersey. Ironically, Dave's parents were both Dickinson graduates.

Watkins immediately won his first game against Swarthmore. The easy win did not presage the deluge of nine straight losses. The eventual 4 - 15 campaign pointed out the error of Ashnault's recruiting during the past three years. One good feature of the year was the fact that only one non-starting senior would graduate. The underclassmen were led by Ted Jursek who was to blossom into a super star.

Following were three more sub-par non-winning seasons. Only Jursek was a shining light as he was practically a one man gang. His deeds are chronicled in the 1969 - 1970 season results. The Watkins coached teams then fashioned back to back winning seasons in 1971 - 1972 and 1972 - 1973. These two successful years were followed by four more less than .500% seasons.

Dave, however, added a new dimension to the basketball program when he led his teams into many holiday tournaments. The first one was the Washington and Lee Tournament in 1969. Each year found the Red Devils in a tournament at some distant college. The most exciting were the trips to Florida. In 1971 - 1972, Dickinson won the Sun Coast Tournament in St. Petersburg that was hosted by Florida Presbyterian.

One of the spark plugs of that team was diminutive Frank Noonan, Jr. He was the son of Frank, Sr., a member of the Dickinson Sports Hall of Fame who played on the great 40's teams. A carbon Copy of his dad, Frank, Jr., could manipulate the ball like a Harlem Globetrotter. His accuracy from the fifteen foot line was outstanding, and his career percentage is still the college record. He gained national acclaim when he appeared on the New York TV show, "What's My Line", as the smallest intercollegiate basketball player in the country.

Gettysburg was still the nemisis. The Devils had an eleven game loss skein to the Bullets. The 1972 - 1973 squad finally beat them in a convincing fashion at the Alumni Gym with a score of 83 - 74. At this stage, Gettysburg was beginning their descent from a Division I program to Division III.

At the end of the back to back seasons, Watkins had to begin a major rebuilding program. With Noonan and company departing via the sheepskin route, a really green team entered the gym. There were only two seniors on the squad which included six freshmen. Five of those six were to letter. There were two freshmen who did create quite a stir - Jim Johnston and Bill Hutton. Hutton was a Cumberland Valley ace. Both would begin to challenge the scoring records as freshmen starters. Eventually they topped the 1000 point barrier and became the first teammates to accomplish this feat. Johnston reached his plateau in the last game of his junior year, while Hutton followed suit the next year.

In 1975 - 1976, the MAC - Southern Division Conference was divided into East and West Sections. Dickinson was placed in the West Section with Muhlenberg, Moravian, Western Maryland, Lebanon Valley, F&M, and Gettysburg. Each team had to play each other in a home and home series, plus a minimum amount of games with East Section opponents. The season would end with the two top teams in each section vying for the overall Southern Division title.

Just when Watkins had brought his young group from 1973 - 1974 to maturity, he opted to begin his graduate work towards a doctorate at Penn State. He was to have gone the previous year, but due to increased athletic department duties it was postponed to 1976 - 1977. The talent laden team was handed to assistant coach Paul J. Seybold, who would serve as interim coach until Watkins' return. Seybold, in turn, was aided by former Red Devil Eugene A. Evans. The 9 - 12 = .428% result was a real disappointment to all in the program.

One of the most exciting games in Watkins' tenure was the Hall of Fame game in 1972-73 against Georgetown. It was John Thompson's first year at Georgetown. He brought his team to Carlisle for an apparent breather. The Hoyas got more than they expected. The fired up Red Devils matched them point for point throughout the contest as Georgetown squeaked out a 66 - 65 win.

Coach Watkins returned from his sabbatical for one more season as head mentor. He was moving more and more into athletic administration. In the transition, he remained for a number of years in an assistant coaching position. Watkins did move into second place in longevity as a head basketball coach. His ten year stint was second only to the venerable McAndrews. His overall record was 90 wins and 132 losses for a .405 percentage.

The above record was quite adequate when you consider the odds with too few players and seldom a good, big man on the squad. Because of the physical size of Dave's teams, the game turned into a running contest. Depth was always a problem. Although there were enough players to fill the rosters, there were too few with great ability. In the early years of basketball, six or seven good players could win their share of games, but not in the modern game. Recruitment of outstanding players was another tough obstacle to overcome. The college was constantly raising their admission standards, and the financial aid packages were not always favorable to the prospective athlete. As one can perceive, the athletic program in general, and the basketball program specifically were having their problems during this era.

Season Hi-Lites

Theodore K. Jursek graduated at the finish of the first semester. Thus ended a brilliant 3½ year career. His records are listed below. There is some errors in his scoring career. The January 23, 1970 Dickinsonian reports that he holds the Dickinson career scoring record with 1076. In reality he scored 1083 because his first full season in 1966-67 states that he scored 230 rather than 223. The problem with this is the fact that the athletic department does not have the official scorebook for this year. The summaries were gleaned from newspaper accounts and therefore could not be verified. The author therefore has to use the sources available to his research.

Sixteen players again appeared on the roster at various times during the season.

Lloyd A. Bonner replaced the high scoring Jursek in the second semester. He also shot 24 free throws in a row from Lycoming to Juniata.

Played 24 games. Four of these were in Christmas holiday tournaments during the semester break. The first one was played at W&L in Lexington, VA. The opponents were Wofford and Centre. The second was the Sacred Heart tourney in Bridgeport, CT and the opponents were Southern Connecticut and Bates. Bates was the only win outside the MAC.

Freshman Guy Brunt shot 8 - 8 from the field vs Lycoming in an 18 point effort.

Ted Jursek selected on the 2nd Team ALL MAC - Southern Division. It was the third consecutive year that Jursek appeared on the ALL MAC Team.

Frank M. Hambrook became equipment manager.

Season Hi-Lites

Played everybody on the squad for most games.
Francis C. Noonan lead the squad in assists with 120 for the season.
Robert C. Shapero was the leading rebounder with 174 and John S. Whitman grabbed 113.
The foul shooting was outstanding all season. Noonan had games of 7 - 7; 11 -12; 11 - 12; and 15 - 16; 8 - 8; 6 - 6; and 5 - 5. His 118 - 138 = 85.5 is the second best performance in history. (See team records below)
Lloyd A. Bonner finished his career with over 1000 points.
Rebounds are screwed up in the Official Scorebook. The total shown at the bottom of column does not add up correctly with each individual's total bounds. Apparently the score keeper added team rebounds but never said so. Totals reflect only what the individuals collected during the game. (971 team totals)
Played in two holiday tournaments. The first one was at Scranton University in December. The second one was in early January at East Stroudsburg State and was called the Pocono Classic.
The following is Lloyd A. Bonner's career total points:

1970-71	127 - 348 = 36.4	+ 65 - 87 = 74.7	= 319	-13.3	24

Season Hi-Lites

Won the Sun Coast Tournament at Florida Presbyterian in St. Petersburg, Florida by beating both the host school, Florida Presbyterian and Brandeis. Jeffrey R. Thompson was named the Tournament's MVP and placed on the All-Tournament first team. Francis C. Noonan was also placed on the first team.

Played in the New Jersey Kiwanis Tournament at Montclair State but lost in the first round to the host school.

Thompson's performance in the Brandeis game in Florida was most outstanding - 8 - 15 FGs = 53.3% + 12 - 14 FTs = 85.7% = 28 points with 22 rebounds. Thompson also had another big evening against Haverford (H) when he shot 7 - 11 FGs = 63.6% + 11 - 12 FTs = 91.6% = 25 pts and 19 rebounds. Against Moravian (H) he shot 9 - 18 = 50.0% + 6 - 9 = 66.6% = 24 pts and 18 rebounds.

Francis C. Noonan continued his torrid FT pace by finishing in the top 5 nationally in Division III. He had consecutive runs of 22 and 18 during the last half of the season. Included among those were 13 - 14 vs Brandeis (A); 9 - 9 vs Washington College (H); 10 - 11 vs Muhlenberg (A); 8 - 8 vs F&M (A); 12 - 12 vs Bucknell (A); 9 - 11 vs Juniata (H); 9 - 9 vs W&L (H).

Finished in fourth place in the MAC South and thus earned a spot in the playoffs at PMC against the top finisher Lebanon Valley. (5 - 4 record)

First winning season for Coach Watkins since taking the reins in 1967-68.

Team had two games with over 50.0% shooting in FGs. Washington College (H) was 36 - 71 = 50.7% and Haverford (H) was 45 - 89 = 50.5%. Both the team seasonal FG and FT percentage was one of the best - FG = 756 - 1883 = 40.1% and FT = 439 - 632 = 69.4%.

(Because we were unable to get field goal attempts except in the Carlisle Sentinel, we published both field goals made from the official scorebook and the newspaper. As you can see both sources are very close and the totals are correct. Jim Johnston was the only one to be directly affected. He became the all time total point king three years later. We therefore gave him the benefit of the doubt and officially credited him with the two extra Sentinel points.)

(No official records exist in the official scorebook. Thus we used the Sentinel figures for the final stats. Johnston's figures again differ. Again we gave him the benefit of the higher score. We did not adjust the rest of the squad because of the small difference in the final totals. We only show Johnston's difference.)

Season HiLites

Eugene A. Evans completed his first year at the helm of the Red Devils basketball fortunes. Gene is a 1949 graduate of Dickinson and former player under both Richard H. McAndrews and Charles H. B. "Chick" Kennedy. David A. Evans is also Gene's son.

Nice wins against both Gettysburg and Shippensburg University. Also upset F&M in the Hall of Fame game. It was F&M's first loss in the South West section after nine straight wins.

Played in two holiday tournaments - the first was played against Radford and Roanoke at Roanoke. The second was the first annual Carlisle Kiwanis Tournament at Alumni Gymnasium.

Had a very good free throw record versus Roanoke (6 - 6) and James Madison (8 - 8). Also shot 10 - 11 vs Western Maryland (A).
Dave Evans ended the season with 15 - 15 from the free throw line.
Jeff S. Cohen, Co-Captain with Zerfing, was removed from the squad after 17 games for poor attitude, speaking out to the media about lack of team work with respect to getting him the ball, and brief altercations with opposing players.
Snapped seven game losing streak against Western Maryland (H).
Finished third in the MAC South West section with a 6 - 6 log.
F&M won the Southern Division championship.
No Dickinson players appeared among the leagues top three in all statistical categories.

Shot 60% from the field vs Radford (A) (32 - 53) (beats 58.6% vs Gettysburg (A) 1977 - 1978 - 17 - 29)

EUGENE A. EVANS - 1978 - 1985

EUGENE A. EVANS - 1978 - 1986

The return of former Red Devil Gene Evans to his alma mater signaled a new era in basketball. Former Co-Captain and inductee to the Dickinson Sports Hall of Fame, Gene became the third Red Devil letterman to coach the round ballers. Kennedy and Hopper preceded him. Of Course, "Chick" was a full time staff member. Hopper and Evans would only coach on a part-time basis. Gene had helped Seybold and Watkins for two years before he and Watkins switched positions.

Gene is still the head coach as this report is being written. He had a long experience in the basketball wars. Upon graduation from Dickinson in 1949, Gene immediately became Carlisle High School basketball mentor. After a successful career there, he moved on to Bucknell University as their coach. When Bob Odell, Bucknell football coach, was chosen as the football coach at Penn, he enticed Gene to change professions for a short time. Hazelton High School returned Gene to the high school basketball scene. As soon as he was available, Carlisle rehired Gene. Preparing to retire from public school teaching and coaching, he agreed to help at his alma mater.

It was not long before Gene installed his own style and way of play. His first team in 1978-79 was only one of two non-winning teams. On that squad was a frosh basketball player from Cedar Cliff High School, David S. Freysinger. In his career, Dave was to rewrite the college individual scoring records. Of course, the teams on which he played were also outstanding. They combined speed, scoring, rebounding, and play making. Incidently, his play maker in those first years was the coach's own son, Dave Evans. Gene had a knack for putting the players in the correct mold so that they operate like a well-oiled machine.

In the second year, Gene hit the jack pot with a Southern Division championship after finishing 10 - 2 in the West section. This team was awarded a bid to the NCAA Middle Atlantic Regional playoffs. For his dedicated work in molding the championship season, Gene was voted by his peers as the top basketball coach in this district. The National Basketball Coaches Association honored the selectees at the annual NCAA Division I Tournament.

The champions won a record 19 games which included three wins over Gettysburg and two over F&M. This was the first time both had been beaten since 1972-73. Also it was the first winning season since that time.

The championship, very appropriately, was won in the last intercollegiate year to be played in Alumni Gymnasium. A ceremony commemorating the last regular season game played in the gym was against Western Maryland. It also was the Hall of Fame game. Ironically, Western Maryland was the only West section opponent to defeat the Devils. The NCAA Regional playoffs were then played in Alumni Gym. After losing to Scranton, the Red Devils finished the last game in a consolation victory over Ursinus 77 - 64.

The 1980-81 team almost repeated their past year's triumphs but had to settle for the runner-up slot in the Division. The season was highlighted by play in the new Kline Life/Sports Learning Center. President Sam Banks was instrumental in making the new gym a priority addition to the campus. Through his interest in athletics, Dr. Banks consistently fostered the project since he became president. It proved to be an exciting place in which to play.

Freysinger's senior year found the Devils with another West section title. The 10 - 2 record rivaled the 1979-80 team. Closing out one of the most brilliant careers in sports history at Dickinson, Dave Freysinger proved that he was a most complete player. Under the tutelage of Evans, Dave matured into the greatest player ever to wear the Red and White. Here was a case where a high scorer combined his talents with other team members to produce team championships. Dave's accomplishments are listed in the 1981-82 season summary.

As Freysinger graduated, the 1982-83 team successfully defended their West section title. Included on this team was the second duo to break the 1000 point barrier. Both Bill Thornton and Ed Ward had been freshmen on the MAC Division championship team in 1979-80. They had another dinstinction. In their four years they were never defeated by Gettysburg as they beat the Bullets eleven straight times. Again their immersion in the team play concept steadly pushed both players toward this point goal. Thornton broke the 1000 point barrier in mid-season while Ward accomplished the feat in the last game of his career in the season ending playoffs.

Faced with a good nucleus returning, Evans had another title in his sights. But, the 1983-84 season had setbacks before the campaign began. Captain Kyle Miller and Art Wolfe suffered pre-season injuries that kept both out of action the entire season. Heir apparent to Ward and Thornton in scoring, Fred Paradise dropped out of school in November. Evans was now faced with a monumental rebuilding task. With only two non-starting seniors on the squad, Gene suffered through his second non-winning season - 6 - 19. However, a new young force was in the wings in the person of sophomore Ted Kirkpatrick. He would eventually prove to be another player in the Freysinger mold.

Again in 1984-85, there were no senior starters on the squad. Junior Kirkpatrick led the team to a 13 - 10 record. As the new season, 1985-86, is getting underway, the newest 1000 point scorer, barring injuries, will be Kirkpatrick. Gene has brought this team around slowly since the 1983-84 season. They still lack that good, big man and a Noonan type play maker, but they will be tough as they are team oriented. At the time of this writing, Evans' seven year log shows 93 wins and 81 losses for a .534 percentage.

Season Hi-Lites

Coach Evans hit the Jack Pot in his second season. Not only did he win the MAC South West section but beat Ursinus in the finals for MAC Southern Division championship. Also finished third in the NCAA Regional Playoffs. Won the second annual Kiwanis Tournament Championship for the first time.

Disastrous Florida trip as the Red Devils went 0 - 3 to Division I teams. In a way the better competition prepared the team for highly successful MAC play.

Beat both Gettysburg (3 times) and F&M (twice) in the same season since 1972 - 1973 when we played each one once.

Last season that the Devils played in Alumni Gymnasium. Western Maryland provided the opposition in the last scheduled home game. At that time little was known whether Dickinson would be the host school for the MAC Southern Division playoffs. That also was Hall of Fame night along with a special ceremony to wrap of the play of Dickinson in Alumni Gym since 1929 when they opened the new edifice opposed by the University of Pennsylvania. Ironically, Western Maryland was the only opponent to beat Dickinson twice this year.

Dickinson was 4 - 0 until Susquehanna edged them 58 - 57 (H).

David S. Freysinger was named the MVP of the South West Section and was named to the ALL MAC South West First Team.

David A. Evans was also named to the First TEam ALL MAC South West.

In the scoring department for the MAC Freysinger finished 7th with 72 - 117 = 61.5% (FG Percentage). Edward T. Ward finished 3rd in the same category with 40 - 60 = 66.6%.

In the Free Throw Percentage David A. Evans was 4th - 35 - 41 = 85.3 and Daniel F. Zorica 5th - 33 - 39 = 84.6 (This included both North and South players.

The twenty seven games were the most ever played by a Dickinson team.

Home floor record was 11 wins and only 3 losses.

This team excellent free throw shooters as Dave Freysinger had a run of 17 straight, Dave Evans shot 84.7 for the season,and 14 - 16 vs Muhlenberg (H) just to name a few.

* There is controversy over the 29-29 tie game. The two teams were 30 seconds into the extra period when the Gettysburg scorer said that the score was really 29-30 in their favor. The Microcosm records the final as 29-29. The Dickinsonian reluctantly allows the referee's 29-30 decision. More on this game in the season's summary
